Port Gregory Maritime Facility

Port Gregory Maritime Facility

Port Gregory is located 47 kilometres northwest of Northampton and 520 kilometres north of Perth, in the Mid West region. The town has a population of approximately 80 people. It supports a small commercial fishing fleet and has a small tourist industry. Fishing and diving are popular activities.

Port Gregory is situated in open water but protected by 5 kilometres of exposed coral reef, which provides relatively safe anchorage for both recreational and commercial vessels. The reef is long and almost continuous, and about 1 metre high.

The Port Gregory Maritime Facility consists of one wooden service jetty and toilets/showers.

Important notice

There has been significant siltation in the vicinity of Port Gregory Maritime Facility that has substantially reduced the navigable water depths which has resulted in restricted access and/or is inaccessible to vessels.

A Temporary Notice to Mariners regarding the reduced depth has been in effect since 16 July 2012.

The Department of Transport (DoT) is monitoring the shoreline progression, which has occurred over a number of years as a result of natural coastal processes.
